A FREE REFLECTION

One cost. One change. More living.

Sometimes people see what you did and miss what it took. This reflection helps you make a fuller account, and notice what you would like more room for.

What takes more out of me than people realise?

Think of one ordinary thing. What did it take before, during and after?

What could help?

Something to reduce, protect, restore or add. Some help can come from you. Some belongs with another person, a workplace or a service.

What would I like that to make room for?

Your ideas, your people, your joy. Something that matters simply because you love it.
